

About Kim

Kim grew up in a small town in northern Illinois with her 2 parents, 2 older brothers and a younger sister. Life was pretty “normal” ...attending school and church, participating in youth programs and camps... Part of Kim’s “normal” life was, and has been, living with a neuro-muscular disorder known as Dejerine-Sottas. While Kim struggled in her youth, she always had a keen sense of her real dignity as a person in the eyes of God. Kim’s parent’s expected much of her, just like her siblings, and always shared their love for her.

It was this foundation of faith in God and love of family that helped Kim face the most difficult challenge of her life. In 1993, she married Bruce, and in 1994 she conceived their only biological child. Unfortunately, a routine ultrasound at 14 weeks revealed significant anomalies, and Kim was advised to abort her baby. Knowing that all life is precious in the eyes of God, including the lives of people with disabilities, Kim and Bruce refused to choose abortion. The months that followed were filled with brief moments of joy and many tears. Despite the tears, Kim’s testimony is filled with hope and peace as she shares how she learned to cling to Christ in all things. In 1996, Kim joined the pro-life work of HELP Ministries, Inc. (then known as a “crisis pregnancy center”) as a member of the Board of Directors. She became Executive Director in 2002, and continues serving in that capacity. The ministry is now doing business as Women’s Care Clinic, offering ultrasound to help save lives. Kim shares her passion for the pro-life cause throughout the community, and always welcomes opportunities to share the message and her faith in God with anyone she meets!

When she is not busy doing pro-life work, Kim enjoys singing in her church choir, rubber stamping greeting cards, reading, and watching classic movies with Bruce.
